Unambiguous coding of the inflection of Polish nouns and its application in electronic dictionaries – format POLEX

Językoznawstwo Komputerowe

Jednoznaczne kodowanie fleksji rzeczownika polskiego i jego zastosowanie w słownikach elektronicznych – format POLEX

Zygmunt Vetulani, Bogdan Walczak, Tomasz Obębski, Grazyna Vetulani

Prof. dr Zygmunt Vetulani, Adam Mickiewicz University (UAM), Poznań, Poland.
Born in 1950, Poznań. Studied mathematics (M.Sc., 1973) and Romance philology (M.A., 1982) at the Adam Mickiewicz University, and foundations of mathematics at the University of Warsaw (Ph.D., 1987). Habilitation in computer linguistics at the Faculty of Neophilology of the Adam Mickiewicz University (1990). From 1997 to 1999 Research Fellowship of the Alexander von Humboldt Foundation. Main fields of interest: artificial intelligence (understanding of natural language by computer), electronic resources for language engineering (electronic dictionaries, grammars and text corpora), linguistic algorithms (parsing), formal description of languages. Publications in computer science, linguistics, mathematics and logic. Management of national and European research projects (e.g. within COPER-NIS). Professor at the Faculty of Mathematics and Computer Science of the Adam Mickiewicz University; head of the Department of Computer Linguistics and Artificial Intelligence (since 1993).

Prof. dr Bogdan Walczak, Adam Mickiewicz University (UAM)

Tomasz Obębski, Technical University (Politechnika Poznańska), Poznań, Poland.

Dr Grazyna Vetulani, Adam Mickiewicz University (UAM), Poznań, Poland.

Wydawnictwo Naukowe UAM